Foreword

Greetings once again,

With the continued growth in information and data, knowing how to find this valuable treasure is vitally essential for the successful operation of a business or the completion of any project.

Many resources exist that can be used for information research, and it is up to the individual to make the best use of these extensive options that are available.

Knowledge is power, and knowing where and how to access that information is the key.

It is my sincere hope that the reader finds this guide beneficial.

Search Engine Manipulation

Web searches can be manipulated to access publicly available information that is typically not intended for public distribution.

Here are some examples:

This search manipulation will list all excel spreadsheets that contain the word personnel:

personnel filetype:doc

The filetype operator does not recognize different versions of similar files formats. Each file format must be queried separately. (i.e. xls vs. xlsx, doc vs. docx, rtf vs. txt).

personnel filetype:doc OR personnel filetype:xls

This example search manipulation will list all publicly-accessible DOC files on the NASA website:

site:nasa.gov filetype:doc

This example search manipulation will list all publicly-accessible XLS spreadsheet files with the word "budget" on the United States Department of State website:

budget site:state.gov filetype:xls

This example search manipulation will list all publicly-accessible PDF document files with the word "technology" on South African website domain names.

[filetype:pdf site:za technology]

Websites may ask you to register to view the contents. Search manipulation can be used to view website content without registration.

This example search manipulation will provide internal website addresses based on specified criteria within the url address.

American Practical Navigator

This book was first published in 1802, and was billed as the "epitome of navigation" by its original author, Nathaniel Bowditch. The text has evolved with the advances in navigation practices since that first issue and continues to serve as a valuable reference for marine navigation in the modern day.

The publication describes in detail the principles and factors of navigation, including piloting, electronic navigation, celestial navigation, mathematics, safety, oceanography and meterology. It also contains various tables used in typical navigational calculations and solutions, including the formulas used to derive the tabular data.
